

Schaefer Stevedoring

SchaeferStevedoring

We are an international stevedoring and logistics company operating in the ports of Brownsville, Altamira, Tampico, and Veracruz. Based out of South Texas, our facilities and network are dedicated to Mexican industry and commerce, making the Latin American country an integral part of our operations and ongoing development. It makes our presence there among our greatest strengths. We directly offer complete stevedoring and shipping services along the Gulf Coast, and work with commercial partners for cargo entering the Pacific Coast via Manzanillo and Mazatlan. The Schaefer name has been involved in the handling of steel and general cargo in Mexico for well over 40 years, and in that time we have developed an established shipping company offering secure and effective cargo transportation in the region Mexico has become for us, very familiar territory.

STEVEDORING

Over the course of several decades, the Schaefer name has been stevedoring along the Gulf for imports into the industrial regions of Mexico. We began with a single, general cargo terminal operation in the Port of Brownsville, handling mostly steel destined for Monterrey. Since then, our stevedoring origin has allowed us to expand our reach into trucking, rail, and ocean freight. Today, Schaefer services now encompass every major transportation mode in Mexico.

Our stevedoring operations are located along the Gulf of Mexico in Brownsville, Altamira, Tampico, and Veracruz. And in addition to those locations, we do bundle services in other ports in Mexico, mostly along the Pacific Coast in both Manzanillo and Mazatlan.

INLAND FREIGHT

In 1993, we established Schaefer & Cía in Veracruz to more directly control our growing operations in Mexico. Since that time, we have had extensive experience in overland shipping affairs, and have created a comprehensive network of partnerships, enabling us to offer warehousing, trucking, and rail services, once the cargo arrives at port. Schaefer & Cía began in Veracruz, but our operational scope now includes Tampico, Altamira, and Manzanillo, and Mazatlan, with a delivery capacity of reaching the entire country. We are on the ground, and immediately respond to the ever-changing environment and requirements that are part of working in Mexico.

Stevedoring, warehousing, trucking, and rail, can be bundled into one larger offering with the ability to ship cargo from the port of origin to the final point of destination. As is the case in many other countries, business in Mexico is an ever-changing environment. Our decades of experience and extensive network are indispensable to the management of these often complex tasks. We’ve developed a deep understanding of how to properly ship cargo within Mexico, and that understanding is one of our pillar strengths. It is at the core of who we are.

SCHAEFER GROUP
SCHAEFER STEVEDORING

In 1960, French artist Yves Klein (1928-1962) registered a paint formula in Paris under the name International Klein Blue (IKB) with the Institut National de la Propriété Industrielle. Throughout most of his career, he had used blue to create incredible works of modern art. This invigorating ultramarine pigment became his mark, and effectively became the art itself. He used many wild variations of blue in his short life, and we have proudly chosen one of them as our company color. In a bow to him, and to international modern art around the globe, we hope to achieve a similar representative affect. To have this color speak for our company, and to symbolize our efforts. Indeed, it is part of our greater work.
